- Size: The size of your vehicle will depend on your needs. If you have a large family, you will need a vehicle that can accommodate everyone. If you are traveling alone, you can get away with a smaller vehicle.
- Weight: The weight of your vehicle will affect its fuel efficiency and off-road capabilities. A heavier vehicle will use more fuel and be more difficult to maneuver in rough terrain.
- Fuel efficiency: Fuel efficiency is an important consideration, especially if you are planning on traveling long distances. A vehicle that gets good gas mileage will save you money and time.
- Off-road capabilities: If you plan on traveling in off-road conditions, you will need a vehicle that has good ground clearance and four-wheel drive.
- Reliability: Reliability is important for any vehicle, but it is especially important for a survival vehicle. You need to be able to count on your vehicle to get you where you need to go, even in the most difficult conditions.

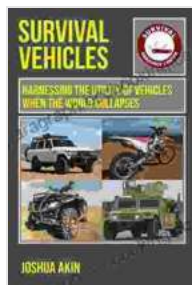

Once you have chosen a vehicle, you need to outfit it for survival. This includes adding features that will make your vehicle more comfortable, more efficient, and more defensible.

Here are some tips for outfitting your vehicle for survival:

- Add a roof rack: A roof rack can be used to carry extra supplies, such as food, water, and fuel. It can also be used to mount a solar panel or a wind turbine.

- Install a winch: A winch can be used to pull your vehicle out of difficult situations, such as mud, snow, or water. It can also be used to lift heavy objects.
- Add a tow hitch: A tow hitch can be used to tow a trailer or another vehicle. This can be useful for transporting supplies or evacuating people.
- Install a CB radio: A CB radio can be used to communicate with other vehicles and to listen to emergency broadcasts.
- Add a fire extinguisher: A fire extinguisher can be used to put out small fires. It is important to have one in your vehicle in case of an emergency.
- Stock up on supplies: In addition to the items listed above, you should also stock your vehicle with other supplies, such as food, water, first aid kits, and tools.

Remember, your vehicle is a tool that can help you survive a societal collapse. By choosing the right vehicle and outfitting it for survival, you can increase your chances of making it through.
