Terry Kohler, the late CEO of Kohler Co., was a man of many talents. He was a successful businessman, a philanthropist, and an avid golfer. But above all, he was a family man. Kohler's life was filled with both triumph and tragedy, but he never lost sight of his values. He was a man of integrity, compassion, and determination.

Kohler was born in 1930 in Kohler, Wisconsin. His father, Walter Kohler Sr., was the president of Kohler Co., and his mother, Ruth DeYoung Kohler, was a socialite and philanthropist. Kohler grew up in a privileged environment, but he was also taught the importance of hard work and giving back to the community.

After graduating from Yale University, Kohler joined the family business. He started out working in the factory, and he quickly rose through the ranks. In 1972, he was named president of Kohler Co., and in 1984, he became CEO.

Under Kohler's leadership, Kohler Co. became a global leader in the plumbing industry. The company expanded its product line to include everything from toilets and sinks to faucets and showers. Kohler also made a significant investment in research and development, and the company developed a number of innovative new products.

In addition to his business success, Kohler was also a generous philanthropist. He donated millions of dollars to a variety of causes, including education, healthcare, and the arts. Kohler was also a strong supporter of the Boy Scouts of America, and he served as national president of the organization from 1989 to 1993.

Kohler's life was not without its challenges. In 1990, his son, David, was killed in a car accident. Kohler was devastated by the loss of his son, but he found solace in his work and his family. He continued to lead Kohler Co. with the same passion and dedication that he had always shown.

Kohler died in 2007 at the age of 77. He was a man who left a lasting legacy on the plumbing industry and on the community of Kohler, Wisconsin. He was a visionary leader, a generous philanthropist, and a loving father. Kohler's life is an inspiration to us all.

The Kohler Legacy

The Kohler legacy is one of innovation, philanthropy, and family. Terry Kohler was a man who embodied all of these values. He was a pioneer in the plumbing industry, and he was also a generous supporter of his community. Kohler's legacy will continue to inspire generations to come.

Kohler Co. is now run by Terry Kohler's son, David Kohler. David Kohler is committed to continuing his father's legacy of innovation and philanthropy. He is also a strong supporter of the Boy Scouts of America. The Kohler family has a long history of giving back to the community, and they are committed to continuing this tradition for generations to come.

The Kohler legacy is one that we can all be proud of. It is a legacy of hard work, innovation, and philanthropy. The Kohler family has made a significant contribution to the plumbing industry and to the community of Kohler, Wisconsin. We are all grateful for their generosity and their commitment to making the world a better place.

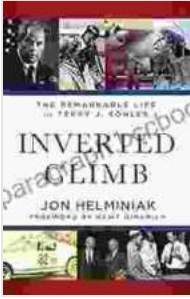

The Remarkable Life of Terry Kohler is a story that should be read by everyone. It is a story of triumph, tragedy, and redemption. It is a story of a man who lived his life to the fullest and who left a lasting legacy on the world. Kohler was a man of great integrity, compassion, and determination. He was a true pioneer in the plumbing industry, and he was also a generous philanthropist. Kohler's life is an inspiration to us all.
