Meet the Five Classmates:

At the heart of the story lie five bright and ambitious classmates who graduate from a prestigious university in the 1930s. Each represents a different social background and political affiliation, setting the stage for a multifaceted exploration of China's complex social fabric.

- Zhang Zhenhua: A brilliant engineer from a modest family, driven by a deep passion for China's advancement.
- Zhao Meilan: A young woman from a wealthy landlord family, torn between tradition and a desire for change.
- Li Guoxiang: A charismatic student leader, fueled by revolutionary idealism.
- Xu Yinguang: A timid and studious young man, struggling to find his place in a rapidly changing world.
- Wang Yimin: An enigmatic artist, grappling with the tension between personal expression and political conformity.

Witness the Nation's Birth Pains:

As the classmates navigate the complexities of their time, they are thrust into the front lines of China's struggle for liberation. From the Japanese invasion to the Civil War, they witness firsthand the horrors and sacrifices that accompany the birth of a new nation.

Experience the Cultural Revolution's Crucible:

The tumultuous years of the Cultural Revolution test the classmates' resilience and principles. They find themselves divided by the political extremism and social turmoil that engulf the country, each grappling with the complexities of their own beliefs.

Embrace Post-Mao China's Promise:

With the end of the Cultural Revolution, China enters an era of unprecedented economic growth and social change. The classmates reunite, bringing their diverse experiences to bear on the challenges and opportunities of this new chapter.

Discover the Interplay of Personal and National Identity:

The book masterfully intertwines the personal triumphs and heartbreaks of the classmates with the broader sweep of China's historical narrative. Through their eyes, we witness the profound connection between individual lives and the fate of a nation.
