Discover the Secrets of Transmutation

Alchemy, the mystical precursor to modern chemistry, has long fascinated seekers of knowledge with its captivating promise of transforming base metals into gold. In this volume, you'll uncover the alchemists' quest for the elusive Philosopher's Stone, said to hold the key to transmutation.

Through detailed explanations and historical insights, The Library of Alchemy Vol 21 provides a comprehensive guide to the principles and practices of alchemy. You'll learn about the alchemists' diverse methods, including distillation, sublimation, and calcination, and gain an understanding of the enigmatic symbolism they employed.

Commonly Used Array Elements/Symbols:

The Merkaba is a complex geometric figure composed of two interlocking tetrahedrons, one pointing up and one pointing down. It is often associated with the concept of a 'light body' or 'energy field' in esoteric traditions.

The Yin-Yang symbol, also known as Taijitu, consists of two interlocking teardrop shapes that form a circle. The white half represents Yang (active, masculine) and the black half represents Yin (passive, feminine).

The flame symbol is a stylized representation of fire, often used to denote heat, transformation, and purification in alchemical processes.

The wavy line symbol, often called the 'serpentine line' or 'Serpentine of Hermes', represents the process of distillation or the flow of energy.

The circle with a central dot, known as the 'Sol' symbol, represents the sun, gold, and the concept of a central point or seed.

The upright triangle is a symbol of fire, masculinity, and the active principle. It is often associated with the element of fire.

The triangle with a horizontal line through it, often called the 'Mercurial' symbol, represents mercury and the process of purification.

The inverted triangle is a symbol of water, femininity, and the passive principle. It is often associated with the element of water.

The inverted triangle with a vertical line through it, often called the 'Lunar' symbol, represents the moon, silver, and the process of reflection.
